

CONTENTS

| | |
|---|-----|
| Introduction Ane Faugstad Aarø & Johannes Servan | 7 |
| Part I: Introduction to Ecophenomenology | |
| The Unity of Eco-Phenomenology: A Reply to Thomson Charles Brown | 17 |
| The Invisibles David Abram | 37 |
| Ecophenomenology and the Resistance of Nature Ted Toadvine | 49 |
| Part II: Embodiment and Gender | |
| Sartre in the Company of Merleau-Ponty, Foucault, and Duden Monika Langer | 69 |
| The Embodied Self and Identity of Three Women Living with Multiple Sclerosis Kirsti Kuosa | 89 |
| The Tangible Invisible: Irigaray's Phenomenological Critique of Merleau-Ponty's Notion of the Flesh Claus Halberg | 107 |
| On Pain and Fear. The Concept of the Body in Gernot Böhmes Philosophy Joanna Handerek | 133 |
| Part III: Contemporary Environmental Philosophy | |
| Ethical Gradualism, beyond Anthropocentrism and Biocentrism? Gunnar Skirbekk | 149 |
| Habermas and Environmental Ethics Jørgen Pedersen | 179 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| The Relational Ontology of Deep Ecology: A Dispositional Alternative to Intrinsic Value? Svein Anders Noer Lie & Fern Wickson | 203 |
| Løgstrup's Philosophy as Environmental Philosophy Jon Helén Pedersen | 235 |
| Circulation Economics – An Ecological Image of Man Based upon an Organic Worldview Stig Ingebrigtsen & Ove Jakobsen | 253 |
| Questions Concerning Technology and Food Linda McGuffie | 273 |
| A Point of No Return. Artistic Transgression in the More-Than-Human World Jan van Boeckel | 293 |
| I, Wolf. The Ecology of Existence Morten Tønnesen | 315 |
| The Authors | 335 |
| Aknowledgements | 338 |